

Product Recommendation Update

Toward the end of my “Woodcarving for Everyone” instructional video, I recommend a product named “Howard Sunshield” for final sealing and weatherproofing of your carving. I have had some problems with this product and no longer use or recommend it.

I have been testing a different product and have had WONDERFUL results with using it. This new product is “MasterClear Supreme” from Modern Masters. This is really good stuff. Be sure to order the matte finish (I don’t like glossy clear coat). This water based product is good for interior or exterior. You can find it on Amazon (of course!).

Apply this the same way I describe the application of the Sunshield in the video. Everywhere, including the painted or color areas. It may drip and pool up a little to keep going back through your piece and wiping up or spreading the little drips or pools so that it doesn’t leave any white looking drips.

Happy carving and Marisa and I are looking forward to meeting you when you come to Northern California to attend one of our Beginning Woodcarving Retreats! Find out more here:
